From the Tradition of Bishop Azariah:

Father will not be the first bishop in his clan. The first indigenous bishop in India during the British occupation, Vedanayagam Samuel Azariah of Dornakal (above) described as the 'great preacher, teacher and evangelist' is his grand uncle. The bishop went to Dornakal in the neighboring State of Andhra, then infested with snakes and wild animals alone after studying a new language, Telugu as a missionary. Dornakal was under a Muslim Ruler, the Nizam, then the richest man in the world. The bishop was later joined by his cousin the late Rev Samuel Packianathan also a grand uncle to Father Jayaraj. When the bishop died, Dornakal was a Diocese with 200,000 Anglicans. Father remembers his Dad telling him that Bishop Azariah loved to preach on Psalm 136. "Let us bless the Lord who remembered us in our low estate. His mercy endures for ever." He also remembers an anecdote where the bishop was a guest in one of his uncles' home. When the host went downstairs in the middle of the night to drink water, he found the bishop on his knees fervently praying to God. The bishop never confirmed anyone nor did he pronounce the blessing after a retreat until the confirmands and retreatants knit their hands together, placed them on their heads and loudly proclaimed, "Owe unto me if I preach not the gospel." Father also remember having heard from several preacher that the bishop wrote a book on Christian Giving where he laid the thesis that Christian Giving begins when it hurts. Bishop Azariah did not believe in taking handouts from foreign bishops even for church growth. So he founded the indigenous Indian Missionary Society (IMS) and the National Missionary Society (NMS). Both have done wonderful missionary work and continue to do so. They are supported by the Indian diaspora throughout the world.

"Missionaries except for a few of the very best, seem to me to fail very largely in getting rid of an air of patronage and condescension, and in establishing a genuinely brotherly and happy relation as between equals with their Indian flocks... You have given your goods to feed the poor. You have given your bodies to be burned. We also ask for love. GIVE US FRIENDS." -Bishop V.S Azariah to delegates at the 1910 Edinburgh Conference, cited in Jonathan Bonk, Mission and Money. The first Indian bishop of the Anglican Church in India.

Father Jayaraj was ordained a deacon and priest in the continuing Anglican Church of India by Primus, the Most Rev Jai Singh Thakore in 1989. Both Fr David T.P. Bradley and Fr Peter Tompkins introduced him to the ACC and urged he come into the Missionary Diocese of New England.

Bishop Bruce Chamberlain initially licensed Father Jayaraj to officiate at Ascension Anglican Church, Griswold, CT and later incardinated him into the Chamber succession. Upon Hamsa's active duty to Bosnia Bishop Kleppinger received the family into the Military Ordinariate. Father served St David's Anglican Church, Galwasy, NY and since 1995 the Church of the Holy Comforter, Poughkeepsie, NY.

Father's Anglican roots are deep. His great grandfather as well as Father Joseph David of Seattle, the late Joseph David was the Rector of St Paul Anglican Church, Meignanapuram (above) which is the largest Anglican Church in India. In one of his trips to India he was invited to preach at this church and his sermon was broadcast to the entire village. He was also invited to preach at St Thomas SPG Tamil Cathedral at Secunderabad,(left) a continuing and independent Anglican Church under the Most Rev Duraisingh James. About 500 persons came to hear Fr Jayaraj who spoke in Tamil while simultaneously translating his sermon in English. (on the left)The window on gospel side is dedicated to the Great-Grandfather of Father Jayaraj (& Father David of Seattle, WA), the Rev. Joseph David, Rector of this Parish for 45 years at St. Paul's Church (above)
